

AVSPNI AUTUMN CONFERENCE 2016

14th - 16th October, Slieve Russell Hotel, County Cavan

Welcome to our annual conference!

Maybe I'm biased but I think this is shaping up to be one of the best AVSPNI conferences ever! I have to commend AVSPNI Council for helping to pull together such a strong programme of lectures which I am certain will appeal to a broad cross section of the practising profession. My only difficulty will be choosing which lecture stream to go to but comprehensive conference proceedings will ensure that all delegates have the opportunity to glean something from every lecture, even those that they can't attend.

As a GP, handling infrequent horse calls can be daunting so Phil and Andy's talks will help empower you to handle beast and owner more confidently. Cattle lectures by Mike, Peter, Martin and others plus Jason and Eileen's sheep topics will boost our food animal knowledge significantly. Liz is back by popular demand with an excellent programme of s/a lectures. The clinical CPD is the backbone of this event but how you manage your business is critical too. Employment and employee issues can be costly and disruptive to the practice team so we have engaged Louise Simpson to highlight many potential pitfalls. David McKeown's VDS role gives him special insight into areas of practice where extra care is needed and his talks are always very popular and highly enlightening.

As well as top-class CPD, this conference also enjoys a well-deserved reputation as a highly sociable family event. We are told that it is quite unlike any other vet conference . . . in a good way! The Slieve Russell Hotel provides us with a beautiful venue — I look forward to seeing you there.

Our conference speakers

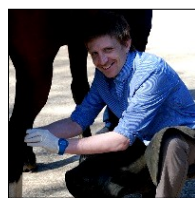

Jason Barley

Jason qualified in 1985 and has worked in mixed Practice, at the RVC as a Research Fellow and the pharmaceutical industry before joining AFBI to work in diagnostic pathology. He is a past president of the Sheep Veterinary Society

Francis Lively

Francis is a Senior Scientific Officer within the Beef Research Unit of the Agri-Food and Biosciences Institute (AFBI), Hillsborough. He obtained his Ph.D. in Meat Science from Queen's in 2006 after completing a degree in Agriculture. His research since then has been focused on areas of beef production covering nutrition, breeding, health and welfare, evaluation of energy utilization efficiencies, production systems and meat quality.

Andy Crawford

Andy's varied career includes an equine internship, work in a race practice in South Africa, a 3 year residency in surgical training at the RVC and an RCVS Certificate in Equine Orthopaedic Surgery. He is a Diplomate of the European College of Veterinary Surgeons & is a partner in the Arundel Equine Hospital.

Eileen McClosky

Eileen graduated from Queens with an Agriculture degree followed by an MSc in Ecological Management and Conservation Biology. Her PhD in Biological Sciences looked at grazing behaviour, diet and social interactions of traditional and non traditional sheep breeds on hill farms. Having worked as a livestock lecturer at SAC, she now works as sheep technologist with CAFRE.

Lindsey Drummond

Following time in practice and at AFBI, Lindsey worked as the temporary Programme Manager for Animal Health and Welfare Northern Ireland with responsibility for the BVD Eradication Programme. She has a long-held interest in production animal medicine and is a Cow Signals® Certified Master.

David McKeown

David is a Glasgow graduate who spent 24 years in a 6-vet mixed practice in North Antrim before becoming a VDS Board member. He has daily involvement in delivering the VDS advice service, and retains a particular interest in communication issues and graduate support.

Peter Edmondson

Peter is a dairy vet who runs Udderwise, a consultancy specialising in mastitis and milk quality offering practical solutions to farmers, vets and the dairy industry. He qualified from Dublin and spent 35 years in vet practice working in Ireland, the UK, Saudi Arabia.

Louise Simpson

Louise has more than 20 years of HR consultancy experience working at senior levels of businesses in the private, public and not-for-profit sectors. This experience has proved invaluable when advising clients on ensuring legislative compliance and minimising the exposure to litigation whilst, crucially, understanding commercial realities.

Phil Ivens

A Cambridge graduate, Phil holds an RCVS Certificate in Equine Internal Medicine and a European Diploma in Equine Internal Medicine (DipECEIM) and is a European recognised specialist in Equine Internal Medicine. His particular interests are in equine infectious diseases, ophthalmology, gastroscopy and sarcoid removal.

Sam Strain

Sam is Chief Executive of Animal Health & Welfare Northern Ireland (AHWNI). He is also Programme Manager for John's Disease for AHWNI and acts as consultant to the Animal Health Ireland John's Control Programme. He has a PhD in veterinary immunology and is currently participating in a large multidisciplinary research consortium assessing novel John's Disease diagnostics, the economics of the disease, herd level risk factors and approaches to herdowner engagement in control programmes.

Martin Kavanagh

Martin is a qualified veterinarian, Cow Signals® trainer and dairy herd health consultant. He has worked internationally in a variety of ruminant production systems. Over the past 20 years he has worked in roles as a farmer, practising veterinarian, cattle nutritionist, in agri-business and skills training.

Mike Kerby

Mike qualified from Bristol and since graduating has worked exclusively in farm animal practice and dairy practice since 1989. He was awarded a Diploma in Bovine Reproduction from Liverpool in 1994 and his special areas of interest are all aspects of dairy herd health and production and especially bovine surgery.

Liz Welsh

Liz graduated from Glasgow in 1989. After a PhD in pharmacology and a year in small animal practice she moved to the University of Edinburgh where she completed a Senior Clinical Training Scholarship in small animal soft tissue surgery. Until 2007 she was a Senior Lecturer in soft tissue surgery at the Royal (Dick) Vet School. She now offers a soft tissue referral service at the new Vets Now Hospital in Glasgow.
